New Screen Magazine,

No. 29. ✓ due Reel

THIS excellent Screen Magazine opens with a view of Lookout Mountain, famous for the battles fought there during the Civil War and now widely known as a health resort. Grandma Martha E. MacDonald, a 101-year-old resident of Jamestown, Tenn., may have lived part of her life there, but the editor is silent on this point except as to contiguity of continuity. If you want to know what's in the old horse pond near your house, this magazine will tell you. It will also show you how iodine is made and how a watermelon may be evolved from the head of a negro boy. Signor Falconi tells you how to test your sweetheart's character and Mme. Schumann Heink shows you how to bathe a baby. There is also a wonderful futurist movie of the popular screen star, Dorothy Phillips.
